

FIGHT EXPECTED ON PROPOSED CHANGES

Question of Revising D. A. R. Constitution May Overshadow Contest for President-General.

Washington, April 12.—With the arrival of most of the delegates to the annual congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution, which begins here next Monday, there already is developing much feeling over proposed changes in the constitution and by-laws. The report of the committee on revision will be made Thursday, but its recommendations have become known with the result that discussion of revision bids fair to overshadow the rival candidacies of the three women who are making a race for president-general.

Two of the proposed amendments have been before previous congresses, but at each they have been voted upon adversely after a sharp oratorical conflict. The first has to do with the presentation of the chapters in the congress.

Under the present constitution each chapter is represented in the congress by its regent and one delegate for its first fifty members, and one for each fifty members after the first 50 members have been attained. This has resulted in a membership in the congress of this year of 1,110 delegates.

The proposed change would give to each chapter its regent, one delegate for the first 50 members, another delegate when the membership has reached 300, and a delegate for each additional 200 members in the congress.

The second proposed amendment has to do with the number of "new members" who may form a new chapter in a community where there already is a chapter. The present constitution provides that these chapters must have at least eight "new" members of the national society.

The proposed change calls for twenty-five members, of whom at least fifteen must be "new" members. It would have the effect of preventing a great increase in the number of small chapters in communities where there already are other chapters and thus increasing the membership of the continental congress.

Members of the organization who also are affiliated with the Society of Colonial Dames, it was declared today, are preparing to wage a fight on a proposal to permit chapters of persons and events prior to 1775, or later than 1783. This proposal has not yet, but probably will be brought in as an amendment by a Western chapter.

Around the heads of the three leading candidates—Mrs. Charles B. Bryan, Mrs. John M. Horton and Mrs. William C. Storey—for the office of president-general, there was much electioneering by supporters of the candidates. All are making an active campaign, with the result that the election this year probably will be one of the bitterest contests in the history of the organization.

Ovide, "but the Vice-President did not die from the effects of the shots. The shock of the pistol bullets revived him from his stupor, and he tried to raise himself to look at his murderer. Immediately he was seized about the throat, and strangled to death, his tongue protruding from his mouth. Marks on his body gave physical evidence in corroboration of the detailed story which was secured from persons who were but a few feet away when the murders were committed."

Dr. S. W. Fletcher, director of the State Agricultural Experiment Station at Blacksburg, closed the program with the most practical address of the day. His subject was soil fertility, and he told the farmers how to reduce the amount of fertilizer and how to produce a bumper crop. The farmers present seemed to be especially interested in what he said.

After he had concluded the great crowd walked across the city to the new and beautiful Suffolk High School, where an abundant dinner of the very best food in Eastern Virginia was served to 1,200 people by representatives of the merchants of Suffolk, who also originated, made all arrangements for and paid the expenses of the meeting. M. Walter Joyner, national chairman of the Southeastern Passenger Association and members of the Travelers' Protective Association, was the leading spirit in getting up the meeting and in looking after the needs and comfort of the visitors. Many complimentary references to him as the man who made the congress possible were uttered by the various speakers.

It was the general opinion that the meeting of the Teachers' Association of the Second Congressional District and of the Farmers' Congress and the holding of the school fair in the same period, first tried this year, will be the annual order hereafter.

Vanderbilt Beats Michigan.
Nashville, Tenn., April 12.—Vanderbilt defeated Michigan here this afternoon in a closely contested game, 3 to 2. The visitors outthrew the locals, making fifteen hits off Luck. The hitting of singles featured for Michigan, he getting four hits out of five times up, one a triple. Vanderbilt made ten hits, of them a home run by Morgan. Michigan fielded in ragged fashion.

Bankrupt Notices

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT OF VIRGINIA:

In the matter of J. F. MARCHANT, Bankrupt.

NOTICE OF FIRST MEETING OF CREDITORS.

To the creditors of J. F. MARCHANT, of Richmond, in the County of Henrico and district aforesaid—Bankrupt: Notice is hereby given that on the 7th day of April, A. D. 1913, the said J. F. MARCHANT was duly adjudicated bankrupt and that the first meeting of his creditors will be held in the office of the United States Bank Building, Richmond, Va., on the 23rd day of APRIL, A. D. 1913, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at which time the said creditors may attend, prove their claims, appoint a trustee, examine the bankrupt, and transact such other business as may properly come before said meeting.

THOS. B. SNEAD, Referee in Bankruptcy.

April 12, 1913.

FEAR OF HUERTA BLOCK TO TRUTH

New Orleans, April 12.—A sensational story of the manner in which President Madero and Vice-President Pino Suarez, of Mexico, were put to death, and of how the rumors who did the assassins' work on the direct orders of their superiors, were likewise slain in an effort to conceal the evidence of the major crime, was brought here today by Martin Ovide, former private secretary to President Madero, who escaped from Mexico City and later joined the Constitutional forces of Governor Carranza, of Coahuila.

President Madero died almost immediately after he was shot," said

Tan, Rubber Sole, Oxfords for women,

$2.50

Women's White Pumps, latest style,

$1.00

Misses White Canvas Button Shoes; worth $2.00,

89c

Children's White Canvas Button Shoes; regular $1.50 value,

75c

Women's White Canvas Shoes, all styles,

$1.29

Women's Sample Pumps, in patent, tan and gun metal,

$1.19

ALBERT STEIN

Corner Fifth and Broad Streets.

King of Shoes.

DEAD MAN'S WIFE ARRESTED.

Nannie Bridge Held on Charge of Murdering

Stanton, Va., April 12.—Charged with the murder of her husband, Clinton Bridge, and standing in expectancy of the arrest, Nannie Bridge, of Harris City, near here, was incarcerated to-night. Bridge was murdered two weeks ago, being poisoned with strychnine, placed in custard tarts made by his wife.

Rutenber-Talbot & Co.

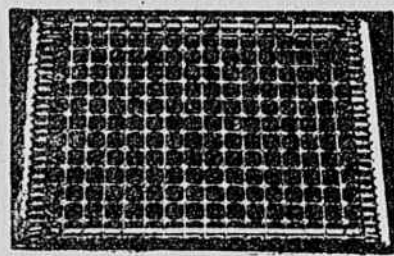

INCORPORATED

207 West Broad St.

SPECIAL VALUES--Opening Day ONLY

$2.15 Only Guaranteed National Spring

Handsome Iron Bed $3.35 Only

The best guaranteed National Spring ever offered; 29 heavy coils at each end; best national fabric; 2-inch angle iron ends; 4-inch high risers. Every body asks $4.00 for this spring. Our Opening Day Price, special for $2.15.

YOU SAVE $1.85 MONDAY.

You can always find a place for this stylish Iron Bed; continuous post, 12 ft. high, 5-16, and 3-8 inch; height, head, 56 inches; foot, 36 inches; enamel is thoroughly baked on; best quality white finish. Every body asks $6.50 for this bed. Our Opening Day Price, special for $3.35.

YOU SAVE $3.15 MONDAY.

MONDAY--OPENING DAY--APRIL 14

Another Special FOR OPENING DAY

Handsome Mahogany Serving Trays, exactly like cut, 14 inches long, 10 inches wide, brass handle, tapestry lining under glass.

Worth $2.00. Our Price, 98c

Absolutely FREE!

This Labor-Saving Dustpan given away to every one visiting our store

Opening Day--Monday

Extra Special---Opening Week

We offer you a special discount of twenty-five per cent. on everything during opening week, April 14th to 19th, inclusive. All goods priced in plain figures. This liberal offer is made to acquaint you with our large and complete line of everything for your home. SAVE ONE-FOURTH BY BUYING THIS WEEK.

YOUR CREDIT IS GOOD WITH US

Our liberal credit terms enables you to secure either our special bargains offered above or anything in our store at our low prices, on terms to suit you. One dollar opens an account with us. It will pay you to get acquainted.

News of Petersburg

The Times-Dispatch Bureau, 5 Bollingbrook Street (Telephone 1845), Petersburg, Va., April 12.

The annual meeting of the Petersburg Education Association will be held on Tuesday evening in the auditorium of the R. E. Lee School. Wish- ing to arouse interest in safeguarding the health of children in the Petersburg schools, the association has arranged to have Dr. L. T. Royster, of the State Board of Health, deliver a short address on "School Inspection." He is an authority on the subject and has been very active throughout Virginia in the campaign for medical inspection in the public schools. There is no system of medical inspection in the Petersburg schools, as there is in other cities.

Following Dr. Royster's address, the report of the president of the association will be read and officers elected for the ensuing year.

STORE ROBBED AND BURNED.

Negro Believed to Be Guilty Arrested in Petersburg.

The store and stock of goods owned by E. F. Gwaltney, in Sussex County, near Milton, a small station on the Norfolk and Western Railway, was destroyed by fire about 2:30 o'clock Thursday morning. Subsequent events proved that the store was first robbed and then set on fire by the thief in order to conceal the crime. Yesterday afternoon Chief Ragland received a message from "Seacoast," a railroad camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day a son and son-in-law of Mr. Gwaltney came to the city and fully identified the goods and the camp in Dinwiddie County, that a strange negro was there having a bag of goods and a breech-loading gun in his possession, believed to be stolen property. Chief Ragland went out to the camp to investigate, arrested the negro, who gives his name as Edward Hudgins, and brought him to the jail in this city. The negro claims that he found the goods and the gun, Chief Ragland, who had been informed of the fire, notified Mr. Gwaltney of the arrest, and to-day